A 2010 Ugandan action-comedy film written, produced, and directed by Nawana Isaac. Geoffrey Godfrey (IGG), is in Wakalilwood, an ultra-low-budget studio in Kampala, Uganda. [1] It has gained viral notoriety for being a no-budget action film, produced on a reported budget of under $200[2][3][4] although producer Alan Hofmanis admitted that it was a meager $85. [5] The trailer of the film was uploaded to YouTube in January 2010, and has been viewed more than 5.5 million times as of December 2020. [3] The original version of the film was lost due to power outages and stressful circumstances, while the surviving version of Who Killed Captain Alex? An English video released online includes clown commentary that adds in running gags about the characters. [2] [6] Plot Capt. Alex, one of the most decorated officers in the Uganda People's Defense Force, is sent out to destroy evil Richard and his tiger mafia, a criminal organization that controls the city of Kampala from the shadows. After Captain Alex captures Richard's brother during a commando mission in Wakaliga, losing countless men in the process, Richard sets out for revenge. He sends a female detective to seduce Captain Alex to catch the Tiger Mafia. Later that night, screams are heard from the tent and Captain Alex is found dead - but no one is sure who killed him. The brother of Captain Alex, a Ugandan Shaolin monk nicknamed Bruce Yu (a play on Bruce Lee as he is known for his exceptional kung fu skills), arrives at Kampala in search of the killer. After getting into a fight with nearby Temple Martial artists, he meets the temple owner. Bruce U desperately begs the master to help him on his mission for vengeance, but the master refuses, saying that martial arts should not be used for vengeance and anger, but instead to maintain a healthy lifestyle. Bruce leaves you in frustration, with the master reminding him to bring a cake to their next meeting. After spending the night in a tree, Bruce Yu wakes up and begins his training routine. As she prepares her breakfast, she faces a woman named ReteH, one of Richard's wives who has lost her memory after being shot by Richard (Richard has so many wives they're expendable). The UPDF, now deprived of a leader as spectacular as Alex, struggles to make an occupying plan for Richard. However, after analyzing a map of Uganda, they find a wilderness area that links to the murky warehouse that Richard is currently hiding. in the meanwhile Russia asks its subordinate puffs to steal a helicopter from the army and bomb Kampala. As Puff wreaked havoc on Kampala with the helicopter, Bruce Yu is captured by the Tiger Mafia. Now in the warehouse, Bruce U finds himself face to face with Richard, who orders Puffs' killers Bruce to attack you and let him face up with a one-on-one fight. Bruce Yu, however, is overwhelmed by one of the kickboxing styles of assassins until he challenges all of them at once. Just in the nick of time though, the military closes in on the warehouse and forces the tiger mafia to evacuate. After the Ugandan military tracks Richard down, an action sequence ensues including several helicopters, myriad explosions, and a huge body count. After an extended ambush, a chain reaction kills puffs and overwhelms Richard to the point where he is injured and taken into custody while swearing revenge in the sequel. But in the end, as the government places Uganda under martial law, nobody knows who killed captain Alex. Cast Kakule William as Richard Bouqustyta Charles Bruce Yu as Captain Alex Sseruyina Ernst, As Captain Alex's brother Nakaymbedde Proce, Natasha G. Puffs as Minister Babiri Ssekweyama as Minister Babiri Ssekweyama as Vicki Biso Dauda as Tom Ssejo As Evan as Tom Ssebanja Evan as Master VJMie as The Voice of The Video Joker Production As the film was produced on an estimated U.S.$200 budget. [3] Production began in the settlements of Naitnet in late 2009. Filmmaker Isaac Godfrey Geoffrey Vana (nicknamed Nawana Igna) was inspired by his love of Hollywood action films and martial arts films since childhood. [7] [8] The helicopter scenes in the film were based on Nagwana's experiences during the Ugandan Bush War where he and his brother were chased by a helicopter. [9] [4] Nagwana shot the film in January 2010 and edited it using a computer gathered from old parts. The film's props and camera equipment were fabricated from scrap metal at a machine shop next to Nagwana's house. The actors supplied their costumes; One of them was given a mask so that he could play two different roles in the same scene. The squibbs used to simulate gunshot wounds were made of red food color-filled condoms and tied to fishing lines before being taped into actors' chests; Nagwana used cow's blood earlier, but was forced to shut it down after one of its actors developed tetanus. [7] [8] [4] During the film, seal song can be heard covering a pump of kisses from a rose. [2] Who killed release and reception captain Alex? More than 10,0 copies have been sold in DVD sales in Uganda and pirated copies of the film have sold an estimated 10 times that amount. [8] The official trailer of the film uploaded to YouTube on 30 January 2010 quickly developed a cult and currently has over 3.5 million views. [10] The film itself on March 1, 2015, of Waqallywood Uploaded to the channel. It currently has more than 5 million views. [11] The movie was released with Bad Black Walkewood Supa Action Volume 1 Blu-ray/DVD Combo by American Style Film Archive (AGFA) on May 14, 2019. The Blu-ray release has the option to see who killed Captain Alex? VJ Emmy narration with or without, as well as subtitles in 40 languages, and videos by Vana IGG for 14 countries are welcome. [12] Who killed Captain Alex? Generally was well received by critics and viewers alike, who saw it as a beloved experience so bad it experienced good experience, despite its limitations. [13] Sequel Nawana IGG had completed work on the 2010 sequel Tebaatusasula (Luganda: Who were screwed on) when a massive power surge in Wakaliga destroyed the hard drive that contained the movie footage, resulting in it being a lost movie. [14] On March 2, 2015, Walkwood set up a Kickstarter campaign to raise 160 U.S. dollars for the film Tebaatusasula: Ebola. The studio was able to receive 13,181 U.S. dollars from 374 supporters by April 1. Tebaatusasula: Who Killed Ebola Captain Alex Serves As Its Direct Sequel? and a remake of the lost Tebatusula film.
